Alumni News

David Brown (B.S. in Agricultural Economics - 1959) was presented the Private Lands Stewardship Award by the Fish and Wildlife Service in cooperation with the Georgia Soil and Water Conservation

Commission (GSWCC) for his conservation ethic and actions carried out on his Longview Farm in Coweta County, Georgia. David entered into a voluntary partnership with the Partners for Fish and Wildlife Program and the GSWCC in an effort to improve water quality and benefit fish and wildlife resources in the watershed and improve habitat conditions for several threatened and endangered mussels found on his land in Coweta County.

Ecio Costa (M.S. in Agricultural Economic - 1998 and Ph.D - 2001), has accepted a permanent faculty position at the Universidade Federal de Pernambuco, Departamento de Economia. He has recently opened a café in a mall near the university. His time is spent teaching/research, coordinating a master's program in international trade and running the café.

Wilbur Mull (B.S, 1963 and M.S., 1965 in Agricultural Economics) won 3rd place in the Georgia auctioneers statewide championship bid calling contest.

Randy Nuckolls (B.S. in Agricultural Economics - 1974) was presented the Friend of Extension Award from National Epsilon Sigma Phi (ESP), the Extension Professionals' Organization, at their national conference in Colorado Springs, CO. The award recognizes truly outstanding support and personal involvement in Extension efforts. Randy is one of only three individuals to receive this honor.

Student News

Mark Byrd (B.S. in Environmental Economics and Management - 1999 and M.S. in Agricultural Economics - 2005) received the Outstanding Master's Thesis Award presented by the Southern Agricultural Economic Association. The title of his thesis is "Farm-Level Approach to the Methyl Bromide Phase-Out: Identifying Alternatives and Maximizing Net Worth Using Stochastic Dominance and Optimization Procedures." Mark's major professor was Dr. Cesar Escalante and other members of his advisory committee included Dr. Michael Wetzstein and Dr. Greg Fonsah.

Fariz Ahmadov has been chosen to receive the 2006 Outstanding Teaching Assistant Award from the University of Georgia. He will be recognized for this distinction at the UGA Honors Day program. This award recognizes teaching assistants who have excelled in the performance of their teaching responsibilities and rank in the top ten percent of all teaching assistants serving the university. This recognition is a result of the excellent work Fariz did in "Intermediate Economic Principles" (AAEC 3580) as a TA teaching laboratory and exam review sessions during spring 2005 and as the instructor during fall 2005.

Obituaries

Thomas Lanier Frazier

Thomas Lanier Frazier, 90, passed away February 01, 2006. He was a retired assistant director of resident instruction, College of Agriculture, University of Georgia. Frazier joined the U.S. Air Force where he trained pilots and flew in combat in the Pacific during World War II. His B-25 plane was shot down, but all six people on board survived. Frazier was awarded the Bronze Star and Purple Heart for his service. Following the war, Frazier received his B.S.A. in 1950 and his M.S. in 1951, both in agricultural economics from the University of Georgia. He worked as a farm manger for a private company for two years. In 1953, he returned to the Agricultural Economics Department at the University of Georgia to teach farm management. He was an innovative teacher, taking his students on field trips for firsthand observation of agricultural related businesses, and he served as faculty advisor for several student organizations. He was the first in his department to use computers and developed a graduate-level, computer-based course on farm management in the late 1950s. In 1972, Frazier became the assistant director of resident instruction for the College of Agriculture, University of Georgia. He also remained on the faculty of the Department of Agricultural Economics, where he continued to teach his popular graduate-level farm management course until he retired in 1981. Memorial contributions to the Thomas Frazier Scholarship Fund may be sent to the Department of Agricultural and Applied Economics, University of Georgia, 301 Conner Hall, Athens, GA 30602-7509. Make checks payable to the Arch Foundation.
